WWO WAS ARRESTED FOR USING HIS AXE ON A SUNDAY. The Religious Community of Vineland, N. J. Stirred to its Centre-The Methodists and

Spiritualists at Daggers Drawn. Mr. John Gage and the Rev. F. S. Chubbuck are old residents of Vineland, N. J. For some time their relations have not been amicable and now the community is terribly agitated over a suit which has been instituted by the reverend gentleman against Mr. Gage. Mr. Gage, who is a Spiritualist, is about seventy years of age, tall and thin, with slightly rounded shoulders, white hair and beard, and a pleasant, kindly coun-tenance. He is greatly addicted to tobacco chewing, and for the indulgence of this habit he has been much censured by some of his neighhas been much censured by some of his neighbors. Although he dresses very plainly, and is to all appearances one possessed of little of this world's goods, he is wealthy, owning valuable property in Vineland and being interested in several profitable enterprises. The Rev. Mr. Chubbuck is a regularly ordained preacher of the Methodist Church, and presides over a congregation in North Vineland. He is about the same age as Mr. Gage, tall and stout, slightly bald, has a clean-shaven face, dresses well, and carries a stout cane. Beside his labors as pastor, he acts as agent for a life insurance company. These gentlemen live within a few hundred pards of each other and frequently meet.

Several very interesting religious revivals have Several very interesting religious revivals have been in progress in Vineland during the past two months, and many names have been added to the church roll. Mr. Chubbuck vigorously fought the growth of the society of Spiritualists. This society was in high feather, however, and determined to rule the roast. The best speakers in the cause were engaged, and they buckled on their spurs and went to work. Several well-known woman's rights advocates enlisted in the cause and spread great havoc among the quiet people of that blooming village. Many women adopted the Bloomer costume so that they might, as they supposed, be the better enabled to travel through the mud long distances to the places of meeting, and the followers of Dr. Mary Walker seemed about to win the battle for the Spiritualists.

Very soon, however, a feeble protest was ut-terred against the appearance of these women, and shortly afterward a loud and ringing appeal went up from the staid people to check the growth of what they dreaded might become the fashionable dress for the women there. Then many of the Bloomers were laid aside and long, railing dresses took their place, and now but a half dozen women dare to

PROMENADE THE STREETS IN BLOOMERS.

PROMENADE THE STREETS IN BLOOMERS.
All these commotions greatly troubled the Rev.
Mr.Chubbuck. He saw with pain the terrible work of the reformers, and he drew a long sigh of retief when at last the tide scemed turning. He thought that there was too much levity among the people, that the Lord's day was not duly observed, and he sighed for the terrifying Blue laws of Connecticut.

On Sunday, the 9th inst., the reverend gentleman arose very early, attired himself in his best tiothing, and taking his cane, started out for his usual morning walk. The sir was cool and bracing, and he stepped briskly along. The treets were deserted, and not a sound was to be heard. Presently, as he neared Mr. Gage's residence, the stillness was broken by something which struck terror to his soul. He cautiously approached the beautiful white-painted fence inclosing Mr. Gage's gardens and halted.
There, within a short distance, was Mr. Gage

IN HIS SHIRT SLEEVES CHOPPING WOOD.

The venerable preacher gazed with astonishment upon the scene, and then sadly shook his sead. He tarried for some moments leaning on the ferce and watching Mr. Gage as that gentleman raised the six high in air and let it descend upon the blocks of wood. At length, as though anable longer to listen to the noise produced by the chopping, the reverend gentleman bowed his head and slowly walked away. He was overcome with emotion, and he resolved that Mr. Gage should receive a lesson. He kept his own counsel until the following day, and then had Mr. Gage arrested for violating the Sabbath day. A bombihell was thus exploded in the camp of the Spiritualists, and all Vineland was aroused. Everybody discussed the subject of the arrest. the Spiritualists maintaining that one of their number had been most foully wronged; the shurch goers, on the contrary, patted Mr. Chubouck on the back, and bid him God-speed in his food work. Private meetings were held, and both sides resolved to fight for their respective hamplons to the bitter end. The woman's rights advocates, in Bloomer costume, flew to the rescue of Mr. Gaze, and everything but the case of The People of New Jersey agt. Gage was forgotten. The Spiritualists contend that Mr. Chubbuck's action goes to show that he IN HIS SHIRT SLEEVES CHOPPING WOOD.

against Mr. Gage. They say when Squire House, a son-in-law of Mr. Thubbuck, was a candidate for the Legislature. Mr. Gage used all his influence to prevent his electin, and for this Mr. Dhubbuck has ever entertained harsh feelings toward Mr. Gage. They say further that Mr. Chubbuck's son and others were holding a political caucus in the family mansion early that sunday morning, that the noise produced by the wood chopping disturbed the political infigurers, and that the young man's sire was prevailed on to go forth and quiet Mr. Gage. Some of the society of Spiritualists even go so far as to say that Mr. Chubbuck was under the impression that if he informed upon Mr. Gage, and that gentleman was forced to pay the fine prescribed by some ancient law for such offences, b. Mr. Chubbuck, would receive half of the ine; but when it is taken into consideration that the Justice can only impose a fine of one tollar, it seems hardly probable, as it is well thown that Mr. Chubbuck is not HARBORS A GRUDGE

SO MUCH IN NEED OF MONEY.

Mr. Chubbuck's friends are not lacking in their praises of him for his course, and insist that his tetion was based upon the purest and best of motives. Mr. Gage is to be tried this week before Justice Loughridge. Meantine great exitement prevaits, and both sides are confident of victory. The Spiritualists say that several members of the Methodist and Presbyterian congregations there are in the habit of chopping wood in their yards every day in the week, and tak why they are not made to face the music which Mr. Gage is now listening to. As Mr. Gage is wealthy and employs men servants, it is laimed that he did not chop the wood because it was a necessary labor for him to perform, or that he did it so as to pecumarily profit by it, but that he daily chopped wood for exercise. He still continues to chop wood, and expects to grow so muscular that he may be enabled to grow so muscular that he may be enabled to the single-handed and alone all his foes in Vineland. SO MUCH IN NRED OF MONEY.

A REVOLUTION IN STONE WORKING Wonderful Machine on Exhibition in the

The Fifth Avenue Hotel is not generally the place selected for the display of machinery, out there is on exhibition there one of the most marvellous pieces of mechanism ever made—the Gear stone working machine, the production of Col. A. S. Gear, the well-known inventor of Bosion. The machine has been erected in the basement, and is supplied with power from the en gine which works the elevators and other appliances of the house. The Gear variety moulding machine, now in general use throughout the country, has long been known as a wonderful invention for the manipulation of wood, on which it would, at a triling cost, reproduce any pattern desired upon the edges of wood. The stone machine, which has just been perfected, will do on stone what the variety moulder will on wood, and, in addition, place mouldings into the face of material; and its invention is, doubtless, as important to mechanical arts as 'he sewing machine in the domestic world.

In its operation this machine is strikingly simple. That part in which the cutting tool is placed works on the principle of the human arm, and is as easily adaptable to the manipulation of a surface. On a table under it, the stone to be cut or worked is secured by clamps, which by an ingenious contrivance admit of placing the stone at any angle or in any position whatever. The tools used are set with black diamonds, and placed in the end or hand of the from arm, that is provided with adjustable handles which the workman grasps. The pattern having been clamped upon the stone, all that is necessary is to set the machine in operation and it will carve out the stone much more accurately than is possible by hand, and in less than one hundredth part of the time. It may be so adjusted as to cut deep or shallow, and make any pattern of moulding or cutting required. It will surface granite with incredible applity. In fact every kind of stone is the same to it, whether it is of soft, laminated formation ike slate, which cannot be fashioned by hand, are the hardest granite.

Col. Gear has taken the rooms lately occupied by the Republican General Committee, and there are exhibited samples of its work. A joint stock company with a capital of $1,500,000 has been formed in Boston to supply the New Engand demand. This company's first large work will be the erection of a block of stone buildings in the burnt district of that city. One mathine will do the work of a hundred men, and to adaptability to any kind of work from nantles to the ing machine, now in general use throughout the sountry, has long been known as a wonderful
